

Antigua Valley Day Hikes

Chutes and Ladders El Hato Loop

A full day of moderate hiking that takes you climbing out of the Antigua Valley to the top of a nearby ridge. The trail traverses the ridge to a tiny pueblo hidden away on the mountainside. The views back towards the Antigua valley and its three towering volcanoes are magnificent as the entire sweep of the valley -from the peak of Agua Volcano to the Acatenango and Fuego complex- frame the vista. From there the trail drops down into a working coffee finca and then climbs into another lively mountain village. Another hour on beautiful contouring valley walls and then the trail takes you back into Antigua.

Boot Town Loop

A full day moderate loop that leaves from Pastores, famous for its hand-made cowboy boots. The trail starts out gradually but soon turns steep to climb 1,640 feet (500 meters) out of town and onto a fertile ridgeline. We'll traverse the ridge for a while and yield to larger-than-life views of the Guatemalan backcountry. The trail then descends downhill through chutes and back to the valley floor.

Ciudad Vieja Ridge Loop

A full-day strenuous hike that climbs up one of Antigua's nearby ridges rewarding amazing views of the valley and surrounding pueblos before disappearing under the canopy of the old growth forest. The trail hits its climax at "El Portal", one of the area's larger peaks, before making its way back down to the valley floor.
